Duke University | GRADUATE SCHOOL

2127 Campus Drive, Box 90068, Durham, NC 27708 919.681.4441 http://gradschool.duke.edu

GS711: RCR Forum series
Fall 2012

Duke Graduate School

Responsible
Conduct of Research
(Revised 9/12/2012)

All RCR Forum events are designed for the professional development of Ph.D. students at Duke; official transcript credit is awarded toward the overall RCR degree requirement and to document training for funding agencies. Duke postdocs are welcome to participate (space permitting). Beyond RCR Orientation, each Ph.D. student must complete at least 6 hours of additional training. Follow the links below to Pre-register for all RCR training. Do NOT register in ACES.

GS711-01 "Moral Development and the Shadow Scholar"
Speaker: Rhonda Sutton, PhD, LPC, Former Director, NCSU Office of Postdoctoral Affairs
Adjunct professor of Counselor Education, NCSU
Owner, InnerSights Counseling and Consultation, Inc.
Description:: The Shadow Scholar is the story of a writer who makes his living churning out papers for a custom-essay company. He describes graduate and undergraduate students engaging in rampant cheating and plagiarism. Dr. Sutton, Director of the NCSU Office of Postdoctoral Affairs and adjunct assistant professor of Counselor Education, will discuss what The Shadow Scholar means for students and instructors who are confronted by cheating, plagiarism, and research misconduct. She also will provide an overview of moral development and how this concept applies to the issues raised in article. Participants will be required to read The Shadow Scholar from the November 12, 2010 edition of The Chronicle of Higher Education prior to attending this discussion (http://chronicle.com/article/The-Shadow-Scholar/125329/).
After this workshop, participants will be able to:
- discuss moral development
- discuss reasons to apply moral development concepts to teaching, learning, academic and research expectations
- explore how to incorporate strategies both inside and outside the classroom that thwart academic and research misconduct and poor scholarly work.
Date/Time: Thursday, October 4, 2012 9:30-11:00am
Location: 103 Bryan Research Building, Auditorium
To Pre-register: http://tinyurl.com/9gnz8ye   (2 Credits)
(Open to all Ph.D. students & postdocs)

GS711-02 "Responsible Authorship in STEM fields: Policies and Pitfalls"
Speaker: Jason Borenstein, Ph.D., Director of Graduate Research Ethics Programs,
Co-Director of the Center for Ethics and Technology, Georgia Tech
Assistant Editor, Science & Engineering Ethics

Description: Most institutions and journals have what seem to be clear policies on authorship; however, there are many potential areas for miscommunication, misunderstanding and other pitfalls. Workshop participants will review existing policies, engage in case study discussions, and identify strategies to promote responsible authorship practices.
Date/Time: Monday, October 15, 2012 9:30-11:30am
Location: LSRC (Levine Science Research Center), B101, Love Auditorium
To Pre-register: http://tinyurl.com/8uuknxa   (2 credits)
(Open to Ph.D. students & postdocs in STEM/science or policy fields)

GS711-03   "Dilemmas: Promoting Scholarly Integrity in Research -- Data Management, Plagiarism or Other Questionable Behaviors"
Speakers: Theater Delta; Ben Saypol, Director
Description: This workshop will use Interactive Theater – scripted and improvisational audience participatory theater – to promote dialogue and change around topics relevant to conducting research and scholarship with integrity. Participants will witness a scene, have an opportunity to interact with and challenge the characters, and then take part in a facilitated conversation about the issues raised.
Date/Time: Friday, October 19, 2012   8:45am-10:30am
Location: Bryan Research Building, Auditorium
To Pre-register: http://tinyurl.com/8tqect3   (2 credits)
(Open to all Ph.D. students & postdocs)

GS711-04   "Navigating Mentor-Mentee Relations: Principles from Self- leadership"
Speaker: John Hawkins, President, Leadership Edge, Inc.; Business Ethics Advisor
Description: This workshop will offer insights from a "lifestyle leadership" model to engage in critical reflection on the culture of the university or department. The model is relevant to help you navigate faculty-graduate student dynamics and improve your self-leadership skills.
Date/Time: Tuesday, October 30, 2012   3:00pm-5:00pm
Location: Social Sciences Building, Room 139
To Pre-register http://tinyurl.com/9ptav5c   (2 credits)
(Open to all Ph.D. students & postdocs)

GS711-05   "Copyright & Fair Use in Research & Teaching"
Speaker: Kevin Smith, JD, Scholarly Communications Officer, Perkins Library, Duke
Description: As more and more scholarship and teaching involves digital resources and digital communications, copyright issues have become more important, and more contentious, than ever before. This forum will examine some of the basic principles of copyright law and discuss how they apply to research and teaching. We will discuss the parameters of the elusive "fair use" privilege and the lawsuits against higher education institutions that it has spawned. We will also consider the issue of intellectual property ownership for scholars and how that ownership can best be managed to serve the interests of the scholar and of the academic community in general.
Date/Time: Tuesday, November 13, 2012   3:00pm-5:00pm
Location: Social Sciences Building, Room 139
To Pre-register: http://tinyurl.com/8zet488   (2 credits)
(Open to all Ph.D. students & postdocs)

(continued)

GS711-06   "Humanities and Social Science Research in the Digital Age: Ethical Issues in Research"

Speakers: Emily Daly, Interim Head, Library Instruction and Outreach, Perkins Library
              Ciara Healy, Librarian for Psychology and Neuroscience, Perkins Library
              Heidi Madden, Ph.D., M.L.S., Center for European Studies, Perkins Library

Description: Digital workflows are becoming more central to research in the humanities & social sciences. Duke University Library specialists will focus on these emerging research challenges. This Forum will address how to use digital tools to gather, share, and disseminate research. Topics will include an overview of Duke Library resources, as well as a hands-on demonstration for downloading and managing citations and bibliographies in two citation management tools (likely Zotero and Reworks). Finally, they will address publishing in open access journals and maximizing the use of databases and other digital tools to maximize research integrity.
              NOTE: Participants should review some of the website related to Citation prior to the workshop: http://library.duke.edu/research/citing/index.html

Date/Time: Friday, November 16, 2012   1:00-3:00pm

Location: Perkins Library, Room 217

To Pre-register: http://tinyurl.com/938w8k9   (2 Credits)

(Open to Ph.D. students & postdocs in Humanities & Social Sciences)

* Note: At least one additional RCR Forum may be added related to engineering ethics. We will notify you via email to the DGS/Assistant list who will forward to all Ph.D. students, as well as website updates.